Fiscal Year 2019–2021 Strategic Plan
The Wisconsin Arts Board thanks our Town Meeting hosts and everyone who provided input into this strategic plan—from communities small, mid-sized and large. The input from those who participated in affinity group discussions, emailed, or called in their comments, was every bit as valuable as that from those who were able to participate in the Town Meetings’ larger, in-person discussions. Town Meetings sites appear above.

Regional Arts Town Meetings provided input to this Strategic Plan.

The Wisconsin Arts Board’s Goals

• Assist Wisconsin communities to engage the creative industries in sustainable community and economic development.

• Champion lifelong learning that inspires imagination, creativity, and innovation.

• Encourage all in Wisconsin to live vibrant expressive lives by affording them opportunities to connect to the rich heritage of Wisconsin and to explore their individual creativity.

• Insist upon competitive resources and public policy which ensure that these goals, valued by the public, are achieved.

Focus

The Arts Board’s FY2019-2021 strategic plan guides our work from July 1, 2018–June 30, 2021. During this three year period we focus staff, board members, technical assistance and grant dollar resources primarily on the creation and presentation of art and cultural activity, arts education, and community and economic development. We strategically allocate our resources to move us toward attaining all of our goals. Our planning philosophy determines that we keep our goals strong, born of our mission and vision and aligned with our positioning statement, which is Creativity. Culture. Community. Commerce. Because our goals must also be grounded in current reality and resources, no low priority items are included in this plan.

In addition to our ongoing work in areas such as community development, creativity and arts in education, serving under-served communities, and the folk and traditional arts, several initiatives throughout this plan serve as “rallying points” for our resources:

• our active leadership in the National Creativity Network and our continued stewardship of our Creative Wisconsin initiative

• our counsel and technical assistance to the nonprofit arm of Wisconsin’s creative sector

• collaboration with our grantee and state level partners to communicate the public value of the work that we all provide to our communities.

Direction

Our previously noted focus guides us in the direction of our vision, which is that the arts are basic to human life and essential to the human spirit.
Mission Statement
The Wisconsin Arts Board is the state agency which nurtures creativity, cultivates expression, promotes the arts, supports the arts in education, stimulates community and economic development and serves as a resource for people of every culture and heritage.

Positioning Statement

Vision
The Wisconsin Arts Board vision is inspired by a quote from the late Robert E. Gard, Professor Emeritus of Community Theatre, University of Wisconsin:

“If we are seeking in America, let it be for the reality of democracy in the arts. Let art begin at home and let it spread through the children and the parents, and through the schools and the institutions, and through government. And let us start by acceptance, not negation—acceptance that the arts are important everywhere, and that they can exist and flourish in small places as well as large, with money or without it, according to the will of the people. Let us put firmly and permanently aside the cliché that the arts are a frill. Let us accept the goodness of art where we are now, and expand its worth in the places where people live.”

We embrace this vision: it guides our belief that the arts are basic to human life and essential to the human spirit.

Core Values
The Wisconsin Arts Board values:
• imagination
• creativity
• curiosity
• diversity, equity and inclusion
• freedom of expression
• respect, appreciation, and access for all cultures and all people
• artistic quality
• a broad definition of the arts
• audience and patron development
• community engagement

Funding for the Wisconsin Arts Board and its programs is provided by the State of Wisconsin and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.
The cultural assets in a community form the magnetic force that attracts creative workers and the sustenance that allows them to thrive. Without a strong arts presence, a community can neither breed creative talent nor attract it. That talent is essential to competitive commerce in urban and rural areas alike. By engaging public, private, and nonprofit sectors in Wisconsin's creative, knowledge-based economy, we will stimulate growth, strengthen the impact of artists and arts organizations on regional economies, and expand community innovation and entrepreneurship.
Strategies

a. Recognize and support creative industries, defined as those organizations, individuals and companies whose products and services have their origin in artistic, cultural, creative, and/or aesthetic content, as a critical sector in community and regional economic development.

b. Assert that Wisconsin’s artists and creatives are fundamental to Wisconsin’s creative economy and must be valued for their work and connected to the resources necessary to build a healthy, sustainable practice.

c. Ensure that the vital role that creative and social capital plays within healthy communities is understood by local and state leadership.

d. Foster innovative collaboration between sectors (public, nonprofit, private) to attract and leverage increased investment in the arts throughout the state. This includes small business development support for the arts.

e. Make clear the important links between creativity and the solutions needed for building sustainable businesses and communities.

f. Consider the differentiated needs of Wisconsin’s communities that exist all along the spectrum of rural to urban.

Goal #1

Assist Wisconsin communities to engage the creative industries in sustainable community and economic development.

Preamble

Children whose minds are stimulated by an arts-infused education develop discipline, focus, judgment, teamwork, problem-solving skills, attention to detail, and a grasp of the “big picture” more quickly than those who don’t…and stay ahead of the curve throughout their school career. With creativity education as core curriculum in our preK-12 schools, we will nurture bold thinkers who work innovatively and take entrepreneurial risks in a fast-changing world—where the model for the school as knowledge factory is as outdated as traditional production models for manufacturing. By encouraging creativity education along the lifespan, we foster creative citizens of all ages.
Strategies

a. Sustain our leadership in the work of the National Creativity Network and the Wisconsin Science Festival.

b. Advocate for inclusion of a diversity of cultures in arts education curricula.

c. Showcase schools that integrate the arts into their curriculum, and support partnerships between cultural and community organizations that offer out-of-school arts opportunities, particularly those for at-risk youth.

d. Partner with artists and arts organizations to provide multi-generational opportunities for arts learning through grants and services.

e. Assist and support artists and arts educators, working in pre-K through 16, and adult, education, through grants and services.

f. Provide information and resources to arts education advocates and decision makers.

g. Promote STEAM education, asserting the vital role of Arts education as equally important to Science, Technology, Engineering and Math education.

Goal #2
Champion lifelong learning that inspires imagination, creativity, and innovation.
Preamble

We will enhance the strong relationship between engagement in the arts and quality of life by encouraging artistic choices for the people of Wisconsin—in the artistry they experience from others and in their own creative expressions. As Bill Ivey, former Chair of the National Endowment for the Arts, observed in the preface to *Arts Inc.:

“...the benefits of an expressive life [are] a reservoir of identity and spiritual renewal powerful enough to replace the fading allure of empty consumerism.”

GOAL #3
Strategies

a. Provide grants and services that support creative work and cultivate expression.

b. Help develop and coordinate networks that leverage talent and resources toward enriching Wisconsin’s arts and cultural life.

c. Maximize broad demographic participation in the Wisconsin Arts Board’s programs.

d. Explore new ways to support and recognize Wisconsin’s artists and elevate their work to a national and international stage.

e. Encourage artists from beyond Wisconsin’s borders to bring their innovative work into our state, enhancing the work of Wisconsin’s artists and igniting new work via Wisconsin’s nationally recognized network of performing arts presenters and our visual and performing arts communities.

f. Function as the State of Wisconsin’s center for information on arts and culture, an initiator of research, and convener of the field.

g. Advocate and provide technical assistance for cultural inclusion within Wisconsin’s arts community.

h. Work with the Wisconsin Department of Tourism to build awareness of Wisconsin’s considerable, compelling and competitive artistic assets.

Goal #3

Encourage all in Wisconsin to live vibrant expressive lives by affording them opportunities to connect to the rich heritage of Wisconsin and to explore their individual creativity.
Preamble

The resources and policy must exist to support the goals stated in this plan, so that we will accomplish the extraordinary work that could be achieved through its implementation. Wisconsin must be as strategically positioned to thrive in the future as it deserves to be, so that the quality of the economic, educational and expressive life of its citizens will be of the highest degree.
Goal #4

Insist upon competitive resources and public policy which ensure that these goals, valued by the public, are achieved.

Strategies

a. Build public will for this goal by advocating effectively to public leaders and their communities about the public value of the arts.

b. Create formal partnerships with Wisconsin’s regional economic development agencies to provide forums that address funding, redundancy in arts organizations and services, and building or maintaining essential infrastructure.

c. Clarify and enhance the current roles and responsibilities of Arts Board members.

d. Leverage Creative Wisconsin’s thought leadership to increase access to resources and influence smart public policy.
The Wisconsin Arts Board’s Strategic Plan for FY2019-2021

Planning Input

In July of 2017, the Wisconsin Arts Board began a broad-based, inclusive planning process to create a 3-year plan. The plan was to reflect the diversity of Wisconsin, identify opportunities and challenges, and show how best to invest resources while deepening capacity, recognizing emerging arts initiatives, and inspiring participation in and appreciation of Wisconsin’s arts and creative sector.

In developing this plan, the WAB gathered input and information using various types of assessment tools: an internal data review, key leader interviews, an advisory committee, on-line constituent surveys, Town Meetings held in Superior, Door County, Milwaukee, Madison, Green Bay, Eau Claire, Marinette, and Ironwood, MI, Appleton, Rhinelander, La Crosse, and affinity groups. From the analysis of the input gathered, WAB developed a plan that includes long-range strategic directions encapsulated in goals and strategies. This plan guides the WAB’s work from FY2019-2021.
Glossary of Terms

Creative Economy—
Artists, cultural nonprofits, and creative businesses working together to produce and distribute cultural goods and services that have a positive impact on the economy by generating jobs, revenue, and heightening quality of life. (New England Foundation for the Arts)

Creative Industries—
Industries such as advertising, architecture, arts and antique markets, culinary arts, crafts, design, designer fashion, film, video and photography, software, computer games and electronic publishing, music and the visual and performing arts, publishing, television and radio. (The Wisconsin Arts Board thanks the Creative Alliance of Greater Milwaukee for this definition of creative industries.)

Expressive Life—
Expressive life is made up of two components: heritage and voice. Heritage constitutes one half of expressive life: the part that is about belonging, continuity, community and history; it is expressed through art and ideas grounded in family, neighborhood, ethnicity, nationality and the many linkages that provide securing knowledge that we come from a specific place and are not alone. Voice, the other half of our expressive life, is quite different: a realm of individual expression where we can be autonomous, personally accomplished and cosmopolitan—a space in which we can, at times, even challenge the conventions of community or family heritage. (Bill Ivey, former chair of the National Endowment of the Arts and Director of the Curb Center for Arts, Enterprise, and Public Policy at Vanderbilt University, from his book Arts, Inc.: How Greed and Neglect Have Destroyed Our Cultural Rights)

Public Value—
The value that a particular product or activity holds for the public; the equivalent of shareholder value in public management. The public value {that an organization} seeks to produce, though it may involve economic returns or useful products and services, is different in kind from the value created in and by the private sector. The {organization} creates value by fulfilling its… mission—roughly stated, to make a positive difference in the individual and collective lives of citizens of the {community} through the arts. The degree to which that mission is fulfilled should be measured both quantitatively (how many citizens receive services from the organization?) and qualitatively (what kinds of impact do those services have on the community’s members?). Creating the highest level value, then, means the key task will be to reach as many {community members} as possible in as many places as possible and to affect them as positively and profoundly as possible. (Mark Moore, Hauser Professor of Nonprofit Organizations and faculty director of the Hauser Center for Nonprofit Organizations, from his book Creating Public Value Through State Arts Agencies)

Social Capital—
The networks of relationships among people who live and work in a particular society, enabling that society to function effectively. The reduction of all the forms of in-person social intercourse upon which Americans used to found, educate, and enrich the fabric of their social lives undermines the active civil engagement which a strong democracy requires from its citizens. (Robert Putman, Malkin Professor of Public Policy at the Harvard University John F. Kennedy School of Government, from his book Bowling Alone: The Collapse and Revival of American Community)
